Daddy I miss you so much. Its so hard here without you. But everyday I do the best I can to keep moving forward. I miss all those days we sat at home smoking some weed playing golf or bowling on the Wii. Lol or when we wld watch baseball or the football. I have so many memories of you that i still laugh about. Its a bitter sweet laugh though because my heart cries for you. Unyque is doing so damn good in school you wld b so proud. Buddha too....But heroes my fav memory of all times about you..... My graduation! I hadno clue how hardyou screamed or what you said cause I didn't hear anyone with me screaming myself. Lol we went to the bar though after and you had the shot of henny. And started stripping!!!! You stood up and told everyone to shut the hell uP, as u unbuttoned ur shirt. Looked around and said I have no idea what to say cause I've never been to oneof these before!!! Smiled at me and said I love you kid. Im proud of you. I got up and hugged you as ppl took pics. But when I got home later that night. I watched the video of my graduation and i heard you scream "yeah that's my girl!!!! That's my DAMGOOD" my heart melted. I miss you daddy I love you forever!!! And ALWAYS!!! Your daughter Dez aka cuddles

What a Unique man you were my Big Bro. Crazy, warped, stern, yet a softy, funny, great singer, how I loved to watch and hear you sing. Awesome bowler. If it hadn't been for you, buying me that Hammer, having them drill it fingertip, something I wasn't ever used to, yet teaching me all you had, I wouldn't have become the 200 average bowler that I became. I'll forever have the vision of you standing up top, watching me going for my very first 300 perfect game. I was fine till someone went into the lounge to inform you that your kid sister was on her way to rolling a 300, which in turn, made you come down to the lane I was on to watch me. Fine until then. Nerves of steel, not giving it a second thought. Then I look up to see you standing by the table mom was sitting at, and at that very moment, the nerves went crazy...lol...But, you gave me that wonderful pep talk, and that proud smile, which so warmed my heart. I ended up with a 279, felt disappointed, but when you applauded for me and hugged me, that feeling went away. I remember a time at Cheney stadium. You, dad and Bill were security then, and I was the pot-o-gold girl. I remember the manager of the Oakland A's, slipping me his hotel key and the feeling of WTF I felt, not to mention freaked out, I was only 14 or 15 at the time. But I came to you, and told you what happened, and like the Big bro you was, you snagged our brother Bill, and the both of you went down into the locker room, surely having some choice words for the man, as you gave his key back to him. My 2 big bro's, my hero's. The softball league...OMG. I wanted to play right field, but NOooooooooo, you had to go and make me the pitcher...I was scared as hell in that position, but I didn't want to let you down, so I did my best. But you were nothing but supportive and encouraging. Then the Karaoke...what fun. Suicide Saturday nights. Aggravation and Pinochle, we used to play...the good ole days. Fond memories in my heart of You. Tho 17 years older, and I never got to tell you, I hope you know just how very proud I was to call you my Big brother. Through life's ups and downs, distance, everything in between, We did have and created some awesome memories. Until we meet up again..... Your Baby sis...Mary...AKA..Nitemare...xoxoxo

I am sooo glad that uncle Lucky unexpectedly showed up at the VA hall quite a few months ago to karaoke with uncle Bill, because that was a good night, and is now and will always be a great memory of my uncle Lucky.
