Jeromy was a joy to my life from the time he was born. He was due on December 4th, but he wasn't quite ready come into the world. All I wished was that he would not be born on Friday the 13th. Well typical Jeromy style that's when he was born while we lived in Germany. From a very young age he was curious about everything and until the day of his passing that never changed. I love you son and I miss you more than words can say. I never dreamed that I would lose you because parents always go before their children. Rest well my son and I pray to God that there will be light in your grave to keep you from the darkness and someday I will see you in heaven.

You must be desperate in your sorrow, not knowing where to go or what to do to ease your pain in these dark days. But we know that the love you feel for Jeromy will last forever, and one day you will see his light shine on you again through your memories, and until you meet again.

Jeromy was a light that would illuminate all darkness. When I was sad or had a bad day he knew just what to say to bring a smile to my face and warm my heart. I feel as though the light in my life has been extinguished and I don't know what to do. However I know Jeromy would want me to pick myself up and keep going. I love you my son, always there will be a part of my heart that only you will possess. When I see you again please smile big so that the light will show me the way.

I'm sorry for your loss Darin. I never met your son but if he brought a smile to your face when you needed it you raised a nice young man and you are fortunate to have called him your son. There truly are no words to take the pain away. I can tell you that the light is still there in your heart and nothing in this world will or can take that away. I'm am sending prayers your way.

Jacque, Darin, Max, Judy. My heart goes out to all of you. Children should never go to heaven before their parents and when they do mere words cannot soften the blow. I'm truly sorry for your loss. I heard many good stories from Max and Judy about Jeromy and that he was a wonderful man. If I can help in any way please don't hesitate to ask. I will keep all of you, especially Jeromy in my prayers. Susan
