To the Wortham Family. You don't know how shocked I was to hear about Gwen's passing, especially when we had just spoken over the phone around July 1st. She had called and told me that I was on her mind, and we talked for over 1.5 hours, reminiscing about our childhood, and the fun we used to have. She had asked me about all the children that grew up with us (on my street), and their whereabouts. Then she said, the fondest memory of "me" was when I showed her how me and my father ate "spear" dill pickles, with "hot sauce" and black pepper on it. She had also shared that David was thinking about having a family reunion in their childhood home; and I said, "I am coming too!". We hung up the phone saying that we would keep in touch, and said we loved each other, and would talk soon. Please cherish your memories with her, because I know, I will... always!
