Hi my name is Rebecca and I know you don't know me but I recently read that you lost a loved one. I just want to offer my sincere condolence. It's never easy losing those we love, I know that first hand myself. I wanted to share something with you that brought me much needed comfort. It is found in God's word the bible. I know you probably have your own religion like most people do and I respect that. What I wanted to share with you are a couple of encouraging scriptures. The first one is found at John 5:28,29. It reads, "Do not marvel at this, the hour is coming when all those in the memorial tombs will hear his voice and come on out." Isn't that a wonderful thought that of being reunited with our loved ones? It is a promise from our heavenly father. The second scripture is found at Revelation 21:4, this states, "And god will wipe out every tear from their eyes and death will be no more, neither will mourning nor outcry nor pain be anymore the former things have passed away." Isn't that an amazing scripture? I can read it over and over and each time I do I still find it encouraging. Just think of a time when we never have to deal with any king of pain be it physical or emotional. Not worrying about losing our loved ones in death or not even dying ourselves. And no more tears, they will only be tears of joy. This is something that will take place in the near future and I cant wait, I look forward to it so much! These are scriptures you can look up in your own bible so you can read them for yourselves. If you would like any bible based literature or anymore comforting scriptures I would be more than happy to provide those for me. Simply email me and I will make sure I get those to you promptly. Thank you for your time and for reading this letter. Again I offer my deepest sympathy. Sincerely, Rebecca
